Chain wins three Pulitzers

NEW YORK (AP) — John S. Knight and staff members of two of his newspapers won separate 1968 Pulitzer Prizes for journalistic excellence Monday, in an unique three-category sweep of the awards.

Never in the 52-year history of the prizes had members of one group of newspapers won three awards in a single year. There have been double awards on seven occasions.

Knight, editorial director of the Knight Newspapers, was honored for distinguished editorial writing. The Detroit Free Press staff was cited in the field of local reporting for its coverage of last summer's riots there. Eugene Gray Payne of Knight's Charlotte, N.C., Observer, was named the outstanding editorial cartoonist of 1967.

The Free Press has been shut down since last November by a labor dispute. It was believed to be the first time a Pulitzer Prize has gone to a newspaper which is not publishing.

The Riverside, Calif., Press-Enterprise won the Pulitzer Prize for meritorious public service for its expose of corruption in the courts in connection with the handling of property and estates of an Indian tribe in California.

The Pulitzer Prize for fiction went to William Styron for his book, "The Confessions of Nat Turner," based on the only effective slave revolt in American history.

George F. Kennan, a veteran diplomat, became a two-time prize winner. He received the 1968 award for biography for his "Memoirs, 1925-1950." He was the 1957 winner in history.

The prizes were established in the will of the late Joseph Pulitzer, who died in 1911, and were first awarded in 1917. Pulitzer was founder of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and publisher of the old New York World.

The awards are made by the Columbia trustees, based on recommendations by the Advisory Board on Pulitzer Prizes, composed mainly of newspaper executives.

The meritorious service award in journalism is a gold medal. Individual prize winners in journalism and the arts received $1,000 each, with an equal sum to those who share an award. In the case of the staff award to the Detroit Free Press, the $1,000 will be sent to Managing Editor Frank Angelo for disposition by the staff.

Mrs. Wallace dies at age 41

MONTGOMERY, Ala.

(AP) — Gov. Lurleen Wallace died early this morning after a lengthy battle with cancer. Doctors said death was caused by another abdominal abscess.

The 41-year-old Mrs. Wallace, only woman governor in the nation, remained at the executive mansion. Doctors had been planning a return to St. Margaret's Hospital "on an outpatient basis for further studies," at the time of death.

Neil A. Armstrong

Astronaut parachutes to safety

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Astronaut Neil A. Armstrong parachuted to safety from a NASA lunar landing research vehicle Monday at Ellington Air Force Base.

The vehicle, worth about $2.5 million, crashed and burned while Armstrong was simulating a moon landing. Armstrong, a civilian, ejected from the single seat vehicle shortly before 1 p.m. Moments later he was walking around and discussing the incident, according to a Manned Space Center spokesman.

Witnesses said the vehicle was about 200 feet from the ground when Armstrong ejected from the craft.

A spokesman said the center has been training astronauts in the vehicle for about a year.

Red regulars near Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — Fighting raged through the pre-dawn dark Tuesday on the outskirts of Saigon. It was the third day of an enemy show of strength apparently aimed at influencing preliminary Paris peace talks opening later this week.

Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base came under rocket or mortar fire, but the shelling was reported light.

North Vietnamese soldiers were reported engaged close to the capital for the first time Monday.

Most of the action in the Saigon area during the morning darkness Tuesday appeared to center near the Phu Tho race track south of the air base, where South Vietnamese rangers earlier had been in heavy contact. Parachute flares lit up

Red envoys inspect hotel

PARIS (AP) — American and North Vietnamese envoys inspected the old Hotel Majestic near the Arch of Triumph Monday and it was reported that the United States had approved the building as the place for preliminary Vietnam peace talks.

If North Vietnam approves as well, the French government is expected to announce that the Majestic, now a center for international conferences, will be the site of the negotiations.

Informed sources said North Vietnamese representatives were awaiting final word from Hanoi.

James of the Christian Science Monitor, and Nathan "Nick" Kotz of the Des Moines Register.

A series of articles on "Crisis in the Courts" won for James. Kotz was cited for his reporting of unsanitary conditions in many meat packing plants, which helped insure the passage of the Federal Wholesale Meat Act last year.

Alfred Friendly of the Washington Post was awarded the prize for international reporting for his coverage of the Middle East war in 1967. The national reporting prize was jointly awarded to Howard the sky there throughout the night, and renewed airstrikes occurred again shortly before 5 a.m.

About 30 miles north of Saigon, elements of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division were reported to have killed 143 enemy Monday in continued intensive action.

Division spokesmen said the fighting Monday increased to 661 the number of enemy killed in a three-day period. U.S. casualties there were termed "very light."

Spokesmen said tanks and armored personnel carriers of the Big Red One smashed through heavily wooded terrain during the day, forcing large enemy units to break down into small groups. The smaller groups then were hit by heavy concentrations of firepower, they said, from the armored vehicles and from helicopter gunships.

After dark, a blast rocked downtown Saigon. It destroyed a car and damaged others nearby but there were no reports of casualties. U.S. officers said the blast was from a rocket or mortar but other sources said an explosive charge may have been placed in the car.

It was generally agreed that the attack Sunday on Saigon and 121 other cities, towns and military installations—mostly by shelling—was a show of force to influence preliminary U.S.-North Vietnamese peace talks set for this week in Paris.

U.S. officials said other purposes might be to shake U.S. public opinion, to strengthen the North Vietnamese bargaining position in Paris or to scare the population of Saigon.

Undecided may tilt Indiana vote today

Governor in middle of battle

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Undecided Indiana voters who make up their minds at the polls in today's primary may alter the course of the Democratic presidential nomination contest.

Although they vary in percentages, the opinion polls indicate that a substantial portion of the Democrats among nearly one million Hoosiers scheduled to cast ballots are waiting until the last minute to decide whether to support Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., or Gov. Roger D. Branigan.

Supporters of former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, alone on the GOP ballot, bought extensive newspaper, television and radio advertising to urge Republicans not to cross over into the Democratic column.

Nixon's supporters published a full page ad: "Are you willing to lie for Hubert Humphrey?" The ad went on to say that "a vote for Branigan is a vote for Humphrey."

Branigan, running as a stand-in for President Johnson until the latter took himself out of the race, shifted to a favorite son stance. He and Humphrey have exchanged statements of mutual admiration.

There are indications that any GOP cross-over voting might be aimed primarily against Kennedy.

The Indianapolis News, accused by Pierre Salinger, a Kennedy lieutenant, with giving biased coverage to the campaign, returned to the fray Monday with a front page editorial urging crossover voting "to upset Robert Kennedy's presidential steamroller and to prove that the voice of the people is more potent than money or image."

Salinger's charges were denied by Eugene C. Pulliam, publisher of the Indianapolis Star and the News, who said Kennedy's activities had received more coverage in the papers than any other candidate. Vincent S. Jones, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, said that group had no authority to investigate, as Salinger asked.

At least one demonstrator at Cheyney State College near Philadelphia brought his crutches with him when students at the predominantly Negro school took over the administration building and blocked the doors with furniture Monday.

600 Cheyney State students take over building peacefully

CHEYNEY, Pa. (AP) — Some 600 students took peaceful command of the administration building at Cheyney State College Monday, vowing to hold out until the state legislature takes action on their demands for campus improvements.

One of the student leaders at the predominantly Negro college, Belinda Wooten, said, "we have demanding better curriculum, a better faculty, a better system of student finances and we haven't been able to get any satisfaction."

Miss Wooten, president-elect of the Student Government Cooperative Association, stressed the orderliness and nonviolent nature of the demonstration.

Another leader for the students, who refused to identify himself, said: "We will not leave the building until our elected representatives take action on problems here."

He said there were about 600 students in the three-story, stone structure.

After hearing of the student action, Gov. Raymond P. Shafer said in Harrisburg that he would not permit students to control any college campus in the state.

About 100 state policemen were sent to the college, about 25 miles southwest of Philadelphia, after the students took charge of the building at 11 a.m.

They were withdrawn to an "assembly point" nearby at the request of William D. Johnson, the governor's special assistant, who said it would indicate "a show of faith on our part not to have police on campus."

At 4 p.m., however, Maj. Rocco P. Urella, State Police area task force commander, said his orders were "not to permit them to stay overnight."

He said these orders could be modified on a moment's notice if it was apparent progress was being made between students and representatives of the governor, who are on campus.

A student leader said a list of grievances was being prepared for submission to the special investigating team representing Gov. Shafer.

Students in the building appeared to represent a cross-section of the student body.

"The students of Cheyney decided to take this action of assuming control of the administration building in an attempt to dramatize with seriousness and sincerity" the problems of the school, said Miss Wooten.

Columbia's year apparently over

NEW YORK (AP) — Two weeks of campus crisis at Columbia University eased Monday, but almost two thirds of its schools and departments abandoned formal classes for the rest of the term.

The besieged university opened its doors for the first time in 10 days, directing its faculty and students to work out their own ground rules. But the acting dean held captive in his office for almost 24 hours when the student protest started April 23 said the normal education process was finished for this school year.

Rebel students striving to close the 25,000-student Ivy League university altogether mounted a boycott of classes Monday morning. By noon, about 300 manned token picket lines before more than a dozen buildings.

But after minor early morning scuffling, the pickets merely shouted and jeered at unsympathetic students and staff members striding through their lines.

The original aims of the student protesters appeared lost in the brief history of their revolt. Before city police stormed the five buildings they occupied and arrested 720 persons in the dead of night last Tuesday, they already had won a suspension of construction of a university gymnasium on a city park separating Columbia from Negro Harlem.

Carl Hayden to retire, 57 years later

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ninety-year-old Sen. Carl Hayden, speaking of "a time to step aside," said Monday he will retire early next year after nearly 57 years in Congress, longer than any other man.

The Arizona Democrat told newsmen and friends he endorses as his successor his administrative aide, Roy Elson, so that "the work will go on."

Barry Goldwater, former senator and Republican presidential nominee, is the only announced candidate for Hayden's seat but Elson has said he would run if Hayden did not.

Two miles underground

Water traps 27 coal miners

Site of West Virginia disaster

HOMINY FALLS, W.Va. (AP) — A "wall of water" from an abandoned mine poured in on a coal crew Monday, trapping some of the 27 miners as far as two miles from the surface.

Officials said "we hope to get as many as 15" out sometime during the night but "we fear the worst" for the remaining twelve.

Rescue workers made contact with 17 closest to the mine opening but another ten could not be reached by radio telephone.

The mine is the Saxwell No. 8, owned by the Gantley Coal and Coke Co., and is located about 75 miles southeast of Charleston, the state capital.

Water broke through and trapped the men just before noon while they were chipping at a coal vein. Company officials said they were working from an old map which indicated an abandoned mine was 200 feet away. But they punched through the wall and water flooded the passageways.

Big pumps were hauled into action to drain the water but there were fears that it was rising as fast as it could be pumped.

A group of students from Crichton High School helped lay lines for the pumps. But they said the water level swelled by two feet in the five minutes they were in the passageway.

Won't give up territory

South Africa defies U.N. plan

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A copper boom and plans to divide South-West Africa into one white and 10 non-white "homelands" are developing while the United Nations ponders what to do next about the disputed territory.

South Africa shows no sign of going along with any U.N. plan to take over South-West Africa. This country plans to control the territory indefinitely "in the spirit" of an old League of Nations mandate.

Foreign Minister Hilgard Muller told U.N. Secretary-General U Thant in a letter last year South Africa "has no intention of abdicating its responsibilities toward the people of South-West Africa" despite a General Assembly resolution ending the mandate.

Afro-Asians in the United Nations criticize South Africa for its treatment of nonwhites in the territory. The world body has set up an 11-member council to lead South-West Africans to self-government under a one man, one vote system.

The council got as far as Zambia, where members were unable to arrange further transportation. South Africa warned that any airplane used by the U.N. group might be impounded as soon as it landed in South-West Africa.

"There is brave talk of a second attempt but it is hard to imagine the Security Council being willing to expose further its powerlessness in this situation," said an editorial in Johannesburg's Rand Daily Mail. "For the truth of the matter is that unless the world body is prepared to impose sanctions or institute military action—which everybody knows it is not—South Africa can continue to stand firm."

South-West Africa is an unprepossessing plot of real estate more than twice the size of California on the southwest coast of Africa. Much of it is rolling plateau scrubland or arid desert.

The 610,000 residents include 96,000 whites who run things and some 13,500 Bushmen who live a Stone Age existence.

The 275,000 Ovambo, who live along the Angola border, are the largest tribal group and comprise 45 per cent of the population.

Others include the Basters, Damara, Okavango, Tswana, Herero and the Nama, who are also known as Hottentots.

South Africa plans to create "homelands" for the various tribes, beginning with the Ovambo, with their own law-making bodies and internal administration.

Biggest problem will be how to consolidate scattered tribesmen in the new homelands. The Hereros already show signs of resisting.

Germany took over what is now South-West Africa as a protectorate in 1884 and spent years pacifying warring tribes. South Africa seized the territory during World War I and has ruled it since 1920 under the League of Nations mandate.

South-West Africa was bankrupt in 1920 when South Africa took over and millions have been poured into the territory.

Diamonds, fish and karakul—Persian lamb-pelts—are the main cash exports. A hunt is on for offshore oil.

Mining earns about $140 million each year for South-West Africa, about 47 per cent of the territory's total income. Consolidated Diamond Mines, run by DeBeers of South Africa, operates the world's richest diamond mine at Oranjemund and this is expected to expand.

A prosperous fishing industry centered around Walvis Bay on the Skeleton Coast is flourishing.

Copper has been known for a long time to exist in South-West Africa, but it has been worked extensively only at the Tsumbe Corp., mine, 270 miles north of Windhoek. Most executives of Tsumbe, which has American financial backing, are Canadian.

Foreign concerns hunting copper now include Kennecott, Rio Tinto, Elosha Petroleum Co. and New Wellington, which is South African but U.S.-financed.

Camden situation tense

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — About 150 Negro pupils left classes at Camden High School Monday during the noon recess and marched, chanting, to City Hall. There they protested the closing of another high school being used by police as an emergency mobilization center.

No violence was reported. Mayor Alfred Pierce met leaders of the protesting students, who also demanded release from jail of three youths arrested Sunday night on charges of possessing firearms.

Woodrow Wilson High was closed after Police Chief Harold Melloy brought in the entire force of 250 because of racial tensions caused by a house fire.

The home, in a predominantly white Camden neighborhood, was made available by the city to a Negro family of 12, displaced because of an urban renewal project.

Fire officials said the blaze apparently had been deliberately set but damage was not extensive.

Coal mines setting for 'Molly Maguires'

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP) — In a coal mine setting rebuilt to 1876 specifications, camera work started Monday for the historical motion picture, "The Molly Maguires."

It will be the story of a secret society of Irish immigrants which flourished in the hard coal country of Luzerne and adjoining counties of Northeastern Pennsylvania during the late 1870s.

Crews of carpenters and craftsmen first made their appearance in the area in early February, laying the groundwork for Monday's start of actual filming.

The preliminaries consisted of reconstruction work in the small (pop. 88) mining community of Eckley, about 10 miles from Hazleton.

The modern, automated coal breaker at Eckley was unrealistic for 1876 scenes, so the film company built one to conform at a cost of $300,000. The breaker is used to size coal into uniform lumps for the market.

Among other preparations, all utility wires were strung underground. Householders were asked to give up, at a price, their television aerials.

The Molliés is a project of Paramount Studios, with Sean Connery, Richard Harris and Samantha Eggar in the feature roles. Martin Ritt is the director-producer, with Walter Bernstein as co-producer. Bernstein wrote the original script.

State approves funds for Wayne Co. home

HARRISBURG — A $333,000 allocation to the Wayne County Commissioners to finance partial cost of a proposed County Home for the Aged was recommended for approval by Welfare Secretary Thomas W. Georges Jr.

The appropriation would come from the federal Hill-Burton funds. The recommendation for approval of the funds was announced Monday.

The allocation for Wayne County still has to be approved by the federal government.

Wayne County Commissioner John Canady yesterday said that Commissioners last September made application for funds. He said the application was made for consideration of federal funds for constructing a county home for the aged.

Commissioners had received no notification on the status of their application.

The funds for Wayne County were a part of a total $10.6 million in appropriations from the Hill-Burton fund recommend for approval. The funds would be used for construction of 18 hospital projects.

4H clubs, farmers to study cooperation

STROUDSBURG — "The co-operative way of doing business" will be studied and compared with other free enterprise systems by members of the Monroe County 4-H Club and Future Farmers of America chapter, starting with a one-day seminar in Allentown on May 8.

Sponsored by the Blue Ridge Cooperative Council, which has member representatives from all agricultural coops from Monroe, Northampton, Carbon and Lehigh counties, the area seminar is part of a statewide program to encourage and promote the education of cooperatives as a way of doing business.

The area council has provided funds of more than $500 to support the participation of a possible 24 young people from three counties in the regional seminar in Allentown.

The four chosen delegates from Monroe will join others in panel discussions with business executives of the various cooperatives.

Tests will be administered and further evaluations made to select one delegate each from the county 4-H Club and FFA chapter to advance to a state level seminar of one week, from July 14-18 at Shippensburg State College.

This will provide further exposure to cooperative study with rounded-out activities in recreation and leadership.

Final selections will be made from the state event for five or six participants to attend the national session sponsored by the American Institute of Cooperatives, to be held at Virginia Polytech in Blacksburg on August 5-8.

Members of the county 4-H selected to attend the one-day seminar in Allentown, are:

Craig Schaller, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schaller, Stroudsburg R.D. 1.

James Frailey, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Frailey, Stroudsburg R.D. 3; William Kerick, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Kerick, Blakeslee; and William Werkheiser, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Werkheiser, Stroudsburg R.D. 4.

FFA members were selected only from the Pocono FFA Chapter from Pocono Mountain School District.

Seven adults and 21 children attended the meeting.

Ten young girls chose sewing as a project and nine others chose cooking.

Mrs. Bea Martin will be leader of the sewing club whose members are Brenda Delling, president; Annie Coultis, vice president; Mary Agnes McLaughlin, secretary; Susan Bortree, Hildegarde Quinonez, Wanda Delling, Sue Ann Hazen, Marie Justice, Doris Schmalze, Maureen McLaughlin.

Mrs. Shirley Coultis will lead the cooking club whose members are Barbara Delling, president; Kathy Sporer, vice president; Diane Jury, secretary; Debbie Coultis, Carol Coultis, Barbara Coultis, Virginia Cooper, Renee Garman and Elizabeth Quinonez. Two other girls were not yet old enough to join either of the clubs.

Both clubs will meet again 7 p.m. Thursday in the Blooming Grove School.

Nine boys in grades four, five and six also are planning to form a 4-H club, but need an adult male or female to head the club.

Any person wishing to lead the boys 4-H club should contact Mrs. Leo Sporer by telephoning 226-4591.

WHAT A PHARMACIST MUST KNOW

You have often heard people say that all a pharmacist has to know when dispensing a prescription is how to count out the already prepared capsules or tablets. This is not true. Pharmacists are taught much more, while attending a college of pharmacy.

A pharmacist must know the art of compounding and how to store medicines to preserve potency. He must know the safe dosage of thousands of drugs. He must know their actions, uses and precautions while taking them, and how to combine them safely with other drugs. And, he must use this knowledge to check the safety of every prescription he dispenses.

YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine.

Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby, or we will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we compound and dispense yours?

Peace talks may not be real

On the surface it may appear as if the United States won a first round victory in having the preliminary peace talks with North Vietnam held in Paris.

North Vietnam favored other spots and had a strong leaning toward Communist Warsaw, in Poland. The United States also proposed a number of locations, with a favorite eye on Paris.

At an earlier date we called on the United States to be tough in these peace negotiations. It appears as if Uncle Sam was just that during the pre-talk waiting period.

However, it may be a hoax. Only time will tell how successful we were in having the talks held in Paris, or held at all for that matter.

There are times when we feel that North Vietnam doesn't really want peace. It appears as if the Viet Cong is stalling for time in which to recharge its warfare batteries and catch both the United States and South Vietnam off guard with a lightning-like offensive thrust.

We must all realize that the talks which open in Paris this week aren't really peace talks. The conference has been scheduled to see if both sides really want peace.

If it is decided that each of the combatants really wants to halt the jungle warfare, peace talks will then be scheduled.

Any success derived from the initial talks and those that might be scheduled at a later date will be tremendous steps toward world peace. Possibly the greatest strides taken in that direction since World War II.

It's ironic that the opening peace talks are to be held in Paris. After all, it was in the jungles of Vietnam that France lost its international stature.

Who protects us?

Recent news from Harrisburg sheds some further light on the work of public relations which should be noted in these columns as a sequel to comments we made about the subject weeks ago.

The Justice Department of Pennsylvania has just appropriated $75,000 to be spent with a Harrisburg advertising and public relations firm through its Bureau of Consumer Protection to set up a program to correct consumer fraud practices.

There are several aspects of this which bother us; not the need for exposing fraudulent outfits, but the necessity of creating a bureau to handle the problem.

For the first thing the bureau does is employ an outside public relations firm to do the job and spend $75,000 of my money to get it done. Why have the bureau in the first place?

And the public relations service is not going to be cheap. Counseling and consultation with Keisling, head of the public relations firm of Keisling Associates, Inc., is going to cost the taxpayer $40 an hour. Creative planning by Keisling is going to cost $50 an hour, news writing $20 an hour and clerical production work $8 an hour. Not bad. Maybe we're just jealous that we're not getting $20 an hour for writing this.

Frankly, we wonder why it is necessary to pay $75,000 to launch a public relations campaign to expose fraudulent practices.

The state's not trying to sell soap, merely inform the people. And if the justice department would make information available on fraudulent practices, any newspaper, magazine or radio and television station would be glad to do the job of informing, without any cost.

All of this makes us wonder a little just what the Bureau of Consumer Protection is doing if it is not able to supply information to the news media, but must pay $75,000 to hire a public relations organization for this routine assignment. Does one exist merely to employ the other?

With this kind of protection from the Bureau of Consumer Protection, we find ourselves wondering who's protecting us taxpayers from the bureau.

Air Mail anniversary

By RAY PATTON

The 10-cent commemorative for the 50th anniversary of Air Mail will have First Day sale on Wednesday, May 15, at Washington, D. C. The 24-cent United States Air Mail stamp issued May 15, 1918, to inaugurate the Air Mail Service and for which this 10-cent commemorative is being issued enjoys many distinctions.

First it is the world's first definitive air mail stamp; second it's the first air mail stamp picturing an airplane; also the first bicolored air mail stamp.

It is also the first air mail stamp with an error in printing (and what an error). Then finally the first U.S. stamp on which its 50th anniversary is the subject of a commemorative.

'Revolution' of poor people

Business may control degree of violence

BY DAVID B. OTTAWAY
Record Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — American business leaders attending the annual United States Chamber of Commerce convention here recently were told that whether the "revolution" now underway among the poor people becomes more violent depends largely upon the role the business community will play in helping to solve the crisis.

Speaking at an "action forum" dealing with the future of business in American cities, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., warned the group that "we are in a race against time" in trying to prevent "a much more violent revolution."

"The question is," said Javits, "can business and government do it in time, and I emphasize in time... That is the issue."

In an unprecedented show of social concern, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce devoted most of its annual convention program to the crisis of the cities and the role local chambers should play in solving that crisis.

In place of the usual first-day open-house reception, a special "workshop" was held devoted to the problem of "mutual understanding and mutual responsibility" between businessmen and ghetto residents.

The lead-off speaker, Dr. Charles V. Willie, a Negro and chairman of the Syracuse University Department of Sociology, predicted that "business will find it necessary to establish new coalitions with new centers of power in order to keep the peace."

The "new centers of power," he indicated, were those emerging from the ghettos and the poor communities of the cities.

"If peace is to come to the ghettos," said Willie, "whites must learn to share the power with the poor people."

Willie suggested that just as management had learned how to share power with labor, so businessmen would have to come to terms with the poor of the ghettos.

"Power is no longer solely in the hands of businessmen," he said.

Vital role

Javits, like many of the other speakers, emphasized that business has a "vital role" to play in the solution to the cities' social and economic problems.

"Your participation will be decisive," Javits proclaimed.

Just how the business community could participate in the solution of these problems was the focus of attention for eight of the 10 "action forums" held during the four-day meeting. They treated such subjects as job training for the hardcore unemployed, education, housing, pollution, and crime.

Convention speakers repeatedly pointed to the local chamber of commerce as the natural center of leadership for efforts to promote "total community developments."

Arch N. Booth, executive vice president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, explained to the business leaders the organization's new blueprint for social action called "Forward America."

Announced in February 1968, the program is designed to get businessmen and business organizations, notably the local chamber of commerce, to "extend the hand of help and cooperation" on community problems. It is described as a "mechanism for mobilizing community resources, including business leadership and know-how."

City revitalized

Literature on Forward America cited the success of the Hartford, Conn. Chamber of Commerce in working to revitalize the inner city and the program of the Los Angeles Chamber to hire and train hardcore unemployed from the Negro section Watts. In the latter instance, the local chamber convinced 3,000 companies to participate in the project.

Javits struck a note of discord, however, on this subject.

Noting that "very serious problems persist" in the new National Alliance of Businessmen, the New York senator said that "there is little to indicate that business now has the competence to bring off successfully the above-mentioned program of hiring and training the hardcore poor."

He warned that unless private companies were adept in designing programs to "maintain and expand motivation" of the hardcore poor, there would be a very high drop-out rate.

Javits also urged that businessmen explore new possibilities of "joint ownership and management" with residents of the ghetto as part of a new effort to promote "black capitalism."

Noting that ghetto residents were anxious to go into business for themselves, Javits told of the remark one Negro leader made to him:

"When you scratch militant, you come up with a Republican."

Ball changes picture

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — With the return of former Undersecretary of State George Ball to the policy-making level of government, the Johnson Administration now is committed to end the bombing of North Vietnam.

Congressional friends of the new United States ambassador-designate to the United Nations are saying Ball received this flat assurance from President Johnson before agreeing to take the United Nations post after Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg insisted on resigning.

Ball was reportedly told that the bombing, now restricted to the 19th parallel, would be stopped completely by the end of June — and possibly sooner.

As outlined in administration circles, the proposed plan is to de-escalate the bombing in stages from the 19th to the 18th parallel and then to the 17th parallel — the dividing line between North and South Vietnam.

While this bombing de-escalation strategy could be changed at any time, it is very doubtful President Johnson will backtrack unless the North Vietnamese launch a major military offensive that endangers large numbers of U.S. troops in South Vietnam.

U. S. military sweeps now going on in South Vietnam are designed to keep the North Vietnamese off balance so they will be unable to launch massive assaults against major American bases or Saigon.

Ball mission

In addition to being U. S. representative to the United Nations, Ball will serve as an ex-officio member of President Johnson's Cabinet, as did the late Adlai Stevenson during the Kennedy administration.

This dual role will permit Ball to oversee his policy of Vietnam disengagement, which he drew up while serving as number two man in the State Department.

This policy in addition to phasing out air attacks against North Vietnam proposes a staged withdrawal of American troops from South Vietnam.

Significantly, Ball's Vietnam strategy bars any sudden withdrawal. Instead, Ball told several senators recently that some Americans will probably be needed in Vietnam for three to five years as "conditions for settlement are worked out in that country."

The first step in Ball's program, already begun, provides for a systematic cutback of the bombing regardless of what the enemy does.

The second step advocated by Ball is a gradual de-emphasis on the war and the American role in it, to be carried out while public attention is focused on attempts to begin formal talks with Hanoi.

Dangerous policy

The Joint Chiefs of Staff are showing a new uneasiness over the halting of U. S. bombing at the 19th parallel.

In warning the president of a new North Vietnamese military build-up in South Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos, the Joint Chiefs caution that continued cutbacks of U. S. air attacks will give Hanoi a "second wind" for a new military offensive later this month or in June.

Of particular concern to the U. S. military is the night-and-day repair work going on at five bombed-out airfields in North Vietnam. Air Force intelligence points out that their runways are being extended, and Soviet-built medium jet bombers will be able to use them as well as MIGs.

At least two of these fields will be operational again by the end of May, unless the Air Force is permitted to attack them soon.

What upsets the President's military advisers is that there is no proof Hanoi plans either to cut back its own military effort in Vietnam or agree to meaningful talks with the U. S. in the immediate future.

U. S. intelligence authorities have warned the President North Vietnam's increased military preparations are a clear sign Hanoi isn't serious about wanting peace.

In own little world

WASHINGTON — In these times of stress, when the poor people are marching on our capital and when the streets are running with college students, it is always a pleasure to turn to Rep. H. R. Gross (R., Iowa) for a look at the lighter side of life.

And Gross, in turn, seldom has to look farther than the nearest Interior Department publication when he wants to smile awhile and forget the problems of the day. For the Interior Department, you see, lives in a pleasant world all its own—a world of beautification, of daffodils and molested whales.

Did you say whales? Molested, yet?

Yes, Congressman Gross was going through some new regulations being enforced by the Interior Department and he came across section 230.56 of the new rules governing the hunting, capturing and molesting of whales.

"Never having molested a whale," says Gross, "I was unaware of the pressing need for this ruling. However, I wish to pay proper respect to the minions of Interior Secretary Stewart Udall who, acting with courage, farsightedness and compassion—and, I might add, with their ever-present sense of priorities—have prohibited you and me from molesting whales."

Specific regulation

The ruling says, in part, "The chasing, molesting, exciting or interfering with, through the use of firearms or by any other manner or means, of any whale—is prohibited." (The regulation is very specific: it lists humpback whales, blue whales, gray whales, humpback whales, right whales—but no left whales—and toothed whales.)

Unfortunately, Gross notes, the regulation has a loophole. You can do anything you want to whales if you are hunting them! You can machine-gun them from planes for all the Interior Department cares. But unless you are actually hunting you don't molest.

Once you have captured a whale, you are required by Interior Department regulations to measure it. "Whales must be measured," the regs say, "when at rest on deck as accurately as possible by means of a steel tape measure fitted at the zero end with a spiked handle which can be stuck into the deck planking abreast one end of the whale. The tape measure shall be stretched in a straight line parallel with the whale's body and read abreast with the other end of the whale."

And that's how you measure a whale. Gee, it's almost like you measure anything else.

Rocky says he'll fight to the last vote. Frankly, I think he's already gotten his last vote.

The way things are shaping up, anyone who stays in a big city this summer ought to get combat pay.

Leaders of the Poor People's March say they're going to stay here until Congress does something worthwhile. I've been waiting for that for 20 years myself.

I think some of our college students are majoring in anarchy.

The Mets won the other day. Oh, well, you can't lose 'em all.

Who ever thought it would be more patriotic to travel to Japan rather than France?

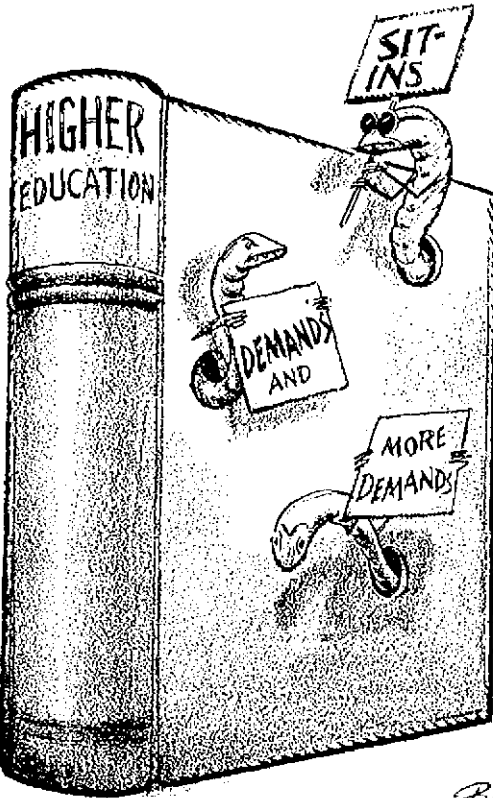

By the time this campaign is over, I'll be ready to vote for the first candidate who promises not to make any more promises.

Congress won't get interested in reaching the moon until the trip is a free junket.

Think of it, Humphrey versus Nixon — a battle of Vice-Presidents.

Welcome for poor

WASHINGTON — Instead of displaying a fish-eyed glare—as some are already doing—Congress ought to make the Poor People's Campaign feel fully welcome in the capital.

It's their capital as well. It's their nation as well. It's their constitution as well which guarantees them the right to petition the government in peaceful assembly.

If there is danger that Rev. Ralph David Abernathy's massive encampment here later this month might erupt into violence—and there is—one way to reduce that danger is for the participants to be met with open arms and with open ears and minds.

Johnson Cabinet officials have set a high standard of attentive friendliness in advance conferences. But unfortunately, there are Congressmen whose first reaction is to disdain this Poor People's Campaign and to suggest the marchers ought to be barred by law from coming to Washington.

They should not. They should be made welcome.

They are not demanding the impossible, nor the ridiculous, nor the extreme.

They are demanding that private industry and government at every level put a higher priority on wiping out poverty in the United States.

Is that a fantastic or unreal goal? As an excuse for not trying, many used to justify their indifference by saying that the poor would always be with us. That view is outdated not just among the poor but among the affluent. The National Association of Manufacturers has stated that "poverty has become intolerable in this country because it is unnecessary."

And is this Poor People's Campaign asking Congress to deal more effectively with something that is peripheral? I offer the answer of Arjay Miller, president of Ford Motor Co., who said that "of all the social problems demanding attention today, the most basic is the elimination of poverty in this country... one-sixth of our fellow citizens are not sharing adequately—or, in some cases, at all—in our progress to date."

More than this, where relief from joblessness is already most needed, the situation is getting worse. The unemployment percentage among Negro teenagers, which has been running about two-and-a-half times greater than for white teenagers, is going up, not down.

We ought not to blur the truth that the Vietnam war puts a priority demand on the Federal budget and that resources are not as available as they otherwise would be to do many of the things government can do to help people rise from poverty.

But this war is going to end and it may be sooner than we think. Therefore, wouldn't it be useful for the Poor People's Campaign to promote a national pledge to commit much of what is now being spent in Vietnam to solving the pressing human problems when war costs decrease?

It might read:

"I pledge that, when peace comes in Vietnam, I will use my influence as a citizen and as a voter to make sure that savings in military expenses will be invested wherever practical in human resources here at home—especially for the benefit of the poor."

Why, isn't this one of the most constructive non-violent campaigns which the Rev. Abernathy and his colleagues could lead—a campaign to bet millions of concerned Americans to write their Senators, their Congressmen, and the Congressional leadership of both parties?

Warning on scooters

Editor, The Record

Recently a visitor to the Poconos died from injuries from an accident. This accident involved a motor scooter. I am not certain of the facts in this particular case but it prompts me to write concerning the rental of motor scooters and motor bikes.

Riding a two-wheeled motor vehicle requires a different set of skills than driving an automobile. A license for one should not imply the presence of the necessary skills for the other.

The roads in the Poconos are either four-lane high speed highways, heavily traveled two-lane roads, or in some cases a narrow lane.

The smaller roads as a rule do not have wide, well graded shoulders. Which ever road is selected for a ride in the country it will be a hazardous situation for the unskilled on a two-wheeled motor vehicle.

Other resort areas have prohibited the rental of motor scooters and I think the municipal governments would be wise in adopting ordinances forbidding the rental of these potentially lethal weapons.

The summer collection, including originals purchased from the famous designers of Paris, Rome and Madrid by the fashion director of Hess's Department Store, Gerry Golden, reflect a new age of individual in fashion.

"Clothes have been designed for moods this season, with mini, midi and maxi hemlines a matter of individual choice," Golden said following his first overseas buying trip for Hess's.

Included in the import collection are fashions by French designers Ungaro, Jean Marie Armand and the new Paris team of Mia-Vicky; from Italy, Frederico Forquet, Princess Galtzine, Tiziani, Heinz Riva, Michael La Mendola and Titti Brugnoli; and from Spain, Elio Berhayer.

The show will also include fashions from top American designers.

JACK O'BRIAN'S

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Hubert Humphrey's prize catch of financier Sidney Weinberg was matched by Bobby Kennedy reeling in IBM boss Thomas Watson. The top-level shakeup at the New York Times (Columnist James Reston upped to executive editor, by-passing managing editor Clifton Daniel) is read by our friends in that city room as a defeat for Margaret Truman Daniel's husband.

Nelson Rockefeller of course has a friend at Chase Manhattan (his brother's boss) but Bobby Kennedy at least has a namesake: Robert Kennedy is a Chase 2nd vice president.

Dean Martin's second clan member to anger the Mexicans — tossed members of the Mexican press off his movie set and now it's Carambat. Our deepest sympathy to old friend, Colony Restaurant maitre D' Joseph Gami whose mother died. Meredith (Mrs. Al) Blinder, daughter of New York State Democratic party brasshat Joe Zaretzki, is okay again after nine serious operations in three years.

Rolf Hochhuth who last inflicted the stunted if not slanderous portrait of Pope Pius in "The Deputy," slings a few more slanted hours of theatre at Winston Churchill, in "Soldiers," banned positively in England; it's not banned here — worse, it's the dearest grinding bore of the season, or decade, dripping ennuï at every monotonously gabby thematic pore. Despite the scruffy male and female nudity and disgraceful manipulation of the American flag in the rock-sick musical "Hair," the most abject effect in its cynical anarchic flailings has its cast draping rosaries around their clasped hands as they sing a churchlike hymn — to sexual practices.

Add another name to the Most Beautiful Grandmothers Club: handsome (and rich) interior decorator Melanie Kahane (Mrs. Ben Grauer) whose daughter Mrs. Joan Porter has the stork scheduled for next fall. Maybe we missed it in the rash of riot news but the national Rotary Club's bulletin states that 1,800 Chicago rioters when arrested had a total of $650,000 in cash on them; "Even the kids were carrying more than $100," and adds, "Poverty?"

Biggest Las Vegas gambling isn't in Vegas but on the high-stake card games of chartered flights paid for by the gambling joints for unholy rollers. Several of the gay (homo) Greenwich Village bars have their female opposites (bull-dikes) as bouncers.

Those pretty Communist stars of "War and Peace," Ludmilla Savelyeva and Irina Skobtseva have been eating lots of meals at Sign of the Dove — one of the costliest capitalist restaurants in the world. Trouble in Bobby's paradise? Kenny O'Donnell and former Post-master General Larry O'Brien are jockeying for high-strategy spots. Model agency owner (and beauty) Wilhelmina and Bruce Cooper named their heiress Melissa Wilhelmina.

Baroness Mona Thyssen and film producer Sheldon Reynolds simply adore smooching in all that London fog. When Julie Andrews landed auspiciously on Bdwy. in "The Boy Friend" she shared a dressing room; her digs for the "Darling Lili" film include a dining room, kitchen, bedroom, etc., plus cook, butler and maid. Philip Barry said, there's no prettier picture than the privileged class enjoying its privileges.

It's Dean Martin's TV producer Greg Garrison's year — his wife inherited a couple of millions. Frank Sinatra Jr. flipped for Joey Heatherton. Cupid doesn't waste his time in hospitals — Dr. Victor Herbert, professor of medicine at Mt. Sinai Medical School will wed Marilynne Gruber of the hospital's press staff; down at St. Vincent's Hospital, Dr. Robert Pascotto took a turn for the nurse — Joan Cleary — his this-June bride.

Our old Philly barmate Benedict Gimbel Jr. (Junior!) is in Graduate Hospital there and informs us: "No visitors, no Get Well cards — just send a gift." Bruce Bozzi of the Palm Restaurant ownership branches out as owner of the new Bruce's Pussycat on E. 49th. New underground-movie star named no doubt "Mixed Up" arrived at Harlow's with hair parted in the centre — blonde on one side, brunette the other. One of shobiz's saddest hardluck stories just had a daughter dropped from school for truancy.

Stewardesses of a worldwide airline threw a big party — with 500 of the tiny bottles of booze you get while airborne; naturally none of their bosses were invited. Former fire dept. official Ray Hellriegel's smile is no false alarm — his daughter becomes Mrs. John Madison on May 4; John's a former Green Beret.

At Mike Manuche's sports hangout, Detroit manager Mayo Smith handed the N. Y. Yankees the dubious compliment, "The Yankees are no 9th or 10th place club — I figure them roughly for 7th." That's like the fellow on our radio show who took no doubt gentlemanly exception to George Frazier's critical rating of Edye Gorme as "10th rate"; her defender said "No — she's 3rd rate."

The run of the biblical musical "I'm Solomon" was shorter than Vincent Sardi Jr.'s sideburns. It lost $800,000. Louis Armstrong melting 100 lbs. also cost him a new $5,000 wardrobe. Florida's Fontainebleau Hotel opened a new low-calorie dining room; part of a nat'l trend. Ed Brandon's band at the new Persian Dervish cafe is Persian-Israeli-Arabic-Turkish-Greek-Armenian; Ed's a graduate of Brooklyn College where a classmate was another "Middle-Eastern" entertainer — belly dancer "Morocco"; Brandon admits he's from exotic Brooklyn but Morocco hits people over the head with her seven veils if they so much as think it.

The five-minute color-TV of Roseland Ballroom on Jonathan Winters' TV hour would have cost owner Lou Brecher $300,000 if he had to pay the commercial-rate ($60,000 a minute). Dagmar refused a lobster bñt at the Delegate because "I don't want to sit here incognito."

Senator needs space

STROUDSBURG — The space problem at the Monroe County Courthouse is nothing new to local officials and employees, but in the near future a state senator may be competing for a little elbow room.

The Monroe County Commissioners, Monday, were thrown into a lengthy discussion over a request made several weeks ago by T. Newell Wood, Republican state senator from the 20th district, which includes part of Monroe, for space two hours a month to meet with his constituents.

It was argued by board chairman Elwood Hintze that perhaps the courthouse is not the place for such a meeting with the people.

Hintze said that since there was no office space available, perhaps the request should be turned down as several other legislators would be asking for the same privilege.

Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis disagreed with Hintze, saying Wood only wants "two hours a month," and that the logical place would be the courthouse, as it is the county seat.

"If a legislator wants to keep in touch with the people, it's to his credit," Mrs. Shukaitis, a Republican, said, and added it was not a "political statement," as she would feel the same about "our Congressman," who is a Democrat, Fred B. Rooney, Bethlehem.

Democratic Commissioner Arlington Martin said that he also feared that the situation could get out of hand and would become "space consuming."

Martin said the county should "take another look and study the request further."

Mrs. Shukaitis added that at most only seven legislators at the state level could request space. "It's terrible to turn them out completely," she said.

Hintze's suggestion that Wood meet with interested persons at Republican headquarters in Stroudsburg, also prompted disapproval from Mrs. Shukaitis, who said that it "would be improper for Wood to align himself with a party building for this purpose."

Martin agreed and suggested that Wood be contacted with the possibility of his accepting space in the courthouse hallway that would allow setting up a small card table for the meetings.

Hintze said that he would "go along" with the idea and requested that a letter be sent advising Wood of the situation.

Cars collide near Neola

STROUDSBURG — State Police at Stroudsburg reported two accidents on Sunday. No injuries resulted from either crash.

At 10:40 a.m., cars driven by Ralph Pryor, 24, of Stroudsburg R.D. 5, and Francis G. Frailey, 21, of Stroudsburg R.D. 3, collided at the crest of a slight hill on a legislative route between Snyder'sville and Neola.

Pryor was traveling west and Frailey east. Both drivers swerved to their right and slid into each other.

Total damage is estimated at $350.

At 3:40 a.m., Jerry L. Hoffner, 22, of Saylorsburg R.D. 1, failed to round a slight curve on a road in Ross Twp. He went off the left side of the highway and struck six guard rails.

Road money under new formula

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Commissioner Chairman Elwood Hintze announced Monday a new percentage-rate basis for allocating county liquid fuel appropriations for municipalities in Monroe County.

According to Hintze, liquid fuel reimbursements from the county will be allocated on the new percentages more strictly than in the past.

It has been the policy to determine what a municipality should receive after guidelines had been set up, using road mileage and population within the township or borough.

According to the chairman, the same rules in judging amounts still hold, but will be more rigidly followed.

He said that the county will automatically reduce the funds immediately available to municipalities by about 20 per cent to allow some reserve for the possibility of improving or replacing county bridges in need of repair.

It was reported that the county can expect from $120,000 to $125,000 for distribution this year, but will only use $82,000 as a base.

Hintze, along with Commissioners Arlington Martin and Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis, made a recent tour of a number of the structures and noted that some date back to the late 1890s and early 1900s.

Hintze said that the board would reduce the total allocation citing Chestnut Hill Township as an example, where the municipality received $7,000 last year and is in line for $5,000 this year.

Commenting on the liquid fuels operation in the past, Hintze commented, "Apparently there was no system to the way it was handled before," and said the figures would be more carefully studied.

Five municipalities have already presented requests for county allocations to supplement the monies returned separately to the townships and boroughs from the state. Ross, Tunkhannock, Stroud, and Eldred townships have submitted requests as well as a verbal request from Stroudsburg.

Hintze said the exact figures a municipality could expect to receive would be released at a later date but revealed the following percentages to be used in determining the amounts.

Chestnut Hill: 6.95; Price, 1.05; Pocono, 5.91; Eldred, 4.16; Smithfield, 5.50; Jackson, 4.17; Middle Smithfield, 6.93; Tunkhannock, 1.07; Hamilton, 8.25; East Stroudsburg, 8.65; Mount Pocono, 1.53; Stroud, 10.33; Polk, 6.24; Ross, 4.16; Barrett, 6.16; Stroudsburg, 7.28; Paradise, 4.05; Tobyhanna, 3.33;

Building needs critical

Sills set to tackle ESSC's problems

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg State College president-elect Dr. Frank D. Sills lost no time in trying out his hand on the administrative throttle during Monday's press conference in Koehler Fieldhouse.

In mapping out his route for the long haul "from a small college to a large multi-purpose institution," he stressed excellence of curriculum and refinement of the quality and quantity of faculty and students.

He admitted that ESSC faces a critical problem in building needs. He forecast that there could be 6,000 students attending ESSC in 1975. "This presents a real challenge, he said, pointing out that the ESSC housing program must move along.

He predicted that the 2,500-student Stroud Hall would be open in the fall of 1969 and that a fine arts building is marked high priority. Buildings in planning stages include an additional administration building, a new dining room and a research learning center.

In his statement of appreciation, the head of ESSC's Health and Physical Education department expressed confidence in the college's board of trustees, the faculty and Gov. Raymond Shafer for making his appointment.

He also thanked the boroughs of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg and their residents for the many congratulatory messages he received.

"I hope to carry on President Koehler's work," Dr. Sills said. "And I know that the excellent faculty at ESSC is eager and anxious to move ahead."

He lauded the student body and noted that they were "concerned with quality education," adding that they were some of the finest (students) in the United States.

He saw a new era for Liberal Arts at ESSC based on the same excellence as its teacher's education program. He advocated that administration, faculty and students work cooperatively within a responsible framework.

"Explore, take action," he

Pensive president said in outlining his educational goals at ESSC.

Referring to Dr. Koehler's appointment of a reorganizational committee more than a year ago, he said that this committee would examine all functions of college restructure and hope to successfully carry them out.

He cited changes at ESSC due to the addition of new programs. "A Bachelor of Arts in Nursing is along the way," he said. In realigning existing college structures he hoped that the ESSC present department of education would become a School of Education.

He emphasized that no one department, including the Health and Physical Education department, would be given any priority or preference by him.

He repeated his interest in the liberal arts. "The Health and Physical Education department," he said, "should have a broad liberal arts base." He added that arts and humanities are critical fields in today's educational makeup.

During a question and answer period a reporter asked him, "Is ESSC getting an equitable share of state funds?"

He said it depended on the particular state college, how they would use the funds. He pointed out that Lock Haven State Teachers has no graduate program and that other state colleges emphasize increased student bodies to take care of overloaded facilities. He warned that any funds must be used in conjunction with a "measured growth program."

He said that besides state funds, additional revenue could be obtained through an alumni association.

In answer to a question on the appointment of a director of development at ESSC, Dr. Sills said that the position "will be a reality here," and added, "also a director of research."

One of Dr. Sills' favorite campaigns outlined at the press conference was making "ESSC a major factor in total higher education in Northeastern Pennsylvania." It's his wish that ESSC will be able to meet the educational needs of high school graduates in Lackawanna and Luzerne Counties.

He found the student unrest at Columbia University "very disappointing." But he maintained that students should have a valid voice on the college campus.

He predicted that the student revolution at Columbia would have an adverse effect on "that great university's programs and faculty."

He advocated an open door policy between student and faculty, especially in this time of tremendous educational change. "If the student has a reasonable request he should be heard and recognized for his abilities," he said.

Water Gap council approves new park

DELAWARE WATER GAP — The Delaware Water Gap Borough Council Monday approved the authorization of a preliminary application of Project 70 funds for a proposed recreational area in Cherry Valley.

The proposed 40-acre borough park will take the place of the borough baseball field that was acquired by Howard Johnson as a motel site.

Francis Johnson, architect for the Howard Johnson motel restaurant chain, told council that Howard Johnson again wished to make known its intention of wanting to be one with the borough.

"We certainly wouldn't mind the borough having our taxes," Johnson told council. "We're not the largest business in town but we'll do our share."

Council president Steven Matos told Johnson that the borough would like to have "in writing" Howard Johnson's intentions of coming into the Gap.

Johnson repeated the restaurant firm's desire of entering the borough. He said that Howard Johnson would even build a dual sewage plant if necessary. "If your water supply goes bad, we'll put our own in," Johnson said. "We use 60,000 gallons daily."

When Matos said a current water study in the Gap is now underway and that at present the Gap's water supply is 200,000 gallons, Johnson replied, "We'll drain half of that in one day."

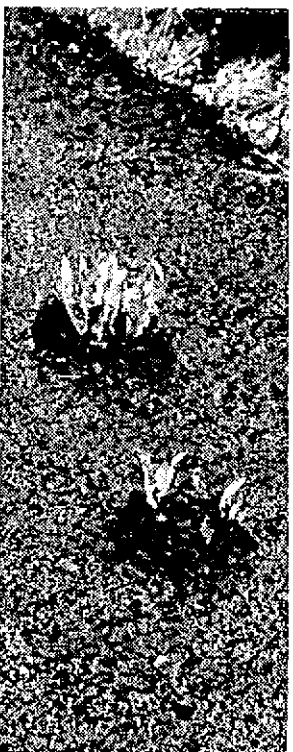

Johnson repeated Howard Johnson's offer to donate an effluent line to the borough. The sewer pipe would run down Rt. 611 and empty into Cherry Creek. Johnson said the water would be properly treated and even safe to drink.

The question of who owns an extension of Sheppard Ave. took up about one hour of the borough's time when several home owners asked the council if they could clear up the riddle of ownership.

Borough solicitor Harry Lee suggested a title search be conducted for legal ownership of the road in question.

Lee pointed out to these questioning borough residents that the borough has always been willing to take over its roads, while 80 per cent of the townships in the county don't favor this policy.

Lee also suggested a special council meeting with Peter DeGelleke, Tocks Island National Park superintendent, to discuss police and water problems in Delaware Water Gap.

Dam site appraisals may top $250,000

By RICK METHOT
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — An expected report on appraisals of sites to be included in the proposed Upper Brodheads Creek Flood Control Project was put off by the Monroe County Commissioners until Thursday's meeting.

Last week, two commissioners had indicated that the figures would be discussed during Monday's session but according to chairman Elwood Hintze the information was "just received this morning" and the commissioners wished to review the appraisal recommendations before making a statement Thursday.

Both Mrs. Nancy Shukailis and Hintze, however, hinted that there was cause for concern because the total appraisal figure for the 10 sites would go well above the $250,000 mark approved by a referendum vote as the authorized figure to spend for land acquisition.

It was also reported that a tentatively scheduled meeting in Harrisburg today with State Soil Conservation Service officials, will be postponed.

Following the commissioners meeting, Hintze told The Record that the board would "cancel" the meeting but when questioned further said there was a possibility an alternate date would be set.

Realtor Walter Dreher had contracted with the county to complete the land site appraisals at a cost not to exceed $1,200.

Late Monday afternoon, Hintze confirmed that today's meeting in the state capital had been postponed and that a tentative date of Friday at 10 a.m. had been established.

According to Hintze, "the program is not dead," and the possibility of receiving some state aid on the flood control project will be discussed at the Harrisburg session.

Commissioner Arlington Martin added that the project is still very much under consideration. "Financially we can handle it," he stated.

Hintze reaffirmed Monday afternoon in the courthouse that the appraisal figures would not be released because of bargaining purposes during negotiations with landowners.

During a salary board session it was approved that former County Board for the Revision and Assessment of Taxes chairman Clyde Shaffer, East Stroudsburg, be hired as a new guard at the county jail at a salary of $80 per week.

Also among the three new employees requested by Sebring were, guard Daryl Heeler, Saylorsburg, at $80 per week, effective April 29, and part-time cook Eva Shutter, Saylorsburg, at $19 per day.

A salary raise was authorized for senior guard Robert Kanary, Stroudsburg, from $80 to $85 per week effective May 13.

Two salaries were also set for Pleasant Valley Manor employees during the session with county treasurer Thomas Joyce.

Rose Stark, East Stroudsburg, was named as a replacement as a nurses' aide at $64 per week and Blanche Williams, Stroudsburg, R.D. 4, was raised from $66 to $68 per week as the county home's head laundress.

Susan Buckingham, Stroudsburg R.D. 4, was hired as a part-time stenographer for the District Attorney's office at two dollars per hour on a 30-hour week.

Commissioners also accepted the resignation of Lynn M. Allen, clerk-typist with the County Children's Bureau, effective June 14.

During the regular board meeting chairman Hintze said a letter had been received from former sheriff's guard Victor Capone stating that he had not been compensated for all the work he had done at the jail.

Sebring said that he had discussed the matter with Capone by phone and "went over the payroll several times" commenting that "his pay was in order."

In relation to county employees, Hintze suggested that the board study the possibility of having county paid workers "evaluate" their jobs.

Hintze said that in light of the turnover of the employees it would be desirable to have on record what each employee is responsible for and her regular duties.

3 ESSC students nabbed after chase

EAST STROUDSBURG — Three East Stroudsburg State College students tangled with East Stroudsburg Police during the early morning hours of Friday — and they lost.

The students are Earl D. Frey of West Pittston; Patrick J. Warner, 18, of Scranton, and Steven Kutz, 18, of Drexel Hill.

Frey is charged with seven motor vehicle violations. They are reckless driving, speeding, failing to wear glasses while operating a car, invalid registration, invalid license, failing to stop on a signal of a police officer and prevention of noise.

According to East Stroudsburg Police, Frey was traveling towards Stroudsburg on S. Courtland Street and police were going to stop him to tell him about a noisy muffler.

Frey failed to stop and headed down Washington. He was clocked by Police at 75 miles per hour on Washington Street.

Police chased him over the Interboro Bridge up McConnell Street to Fifth Street.

At the intersection, Frey's car left skid marks for 251 feet before it collided with a block building that once was a beer distributor's place of business.

Frey then headed north on N. Fifth Street and when he approached the area near Walt's Diner the damaged fender had cut through the tire and he had to stop.

It was at this point Frey was apprehended by police at approximately 3 a.m.

Police said the dead man was wearing a seat belt and that the younger Oslin boy and Tigar were also wearing seat belts.

The car, police said, is a total loss.

It took some 40 minutes to free Oslin from the twisted wreckage of the car.

Bell makes new offer

STROUDSBURG — The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania put more chips on the bargaining table today in another move to end the 12-day strike of the Federation of Telephone Workers of Pennsylvania.

"We have heaped up considerably the unprecedented $21 million offer already on the table," said Bell's chief negotiator W. W. Kinkel.

The proposal means, for example, that a plant department switchman in Harrisburg who now earns $154.50 a week would receive not only a $24 weekly wage increase over the three-year period but also an additional $4 a week immediately.

KUTZTOWN — East Stroudsburg State swept both ends of a doubleheader from Kutztown State, Monday, 8-1 and 7-3, to raise its seasonal record to 7-5.

First baseman Dick Siwak and shortstop Leo Schnalzer were the batting stars while John Grobelny and John Harner starred on the mound.

Siwak drove in seven runs for the afternoon, five in the first game, while Schnalzer had six hits in seven trips to the plate.

Grobelny was in complete control the first game as he allowed only two hits, both by LeRoy Thompson. Thompson had a bad-lap hit in the fifth and a solid blow in the seventh.

In the first game Siwak had a two-run double to feature a three-run spree in the third and fifth to complete ESSC's scoring.

In the nightcap the Warriors, winners in seven of their last eight games, did all their scoring in the third and fourth innings.

Doubles by Siwak and Lou Melucci featured the four-run third while Schnalzer's triple and a single by Siwak were the big blows in the three-run fourth.

Harner was touched for 12 hits but was scored on only the fourth and sixth innings.

Mantle passes Williams in HR race

NEW YORK (AP) — Sam McDowell struck out 14 batters, breaking the American League's consecutive game strikeout record, and drove in two runs with a single Monday night as Cleveland beat the

New York Yankees, 3-2. Mickey Mantle of the Yankees hit his 522nd career homer in the first inning, moving into fourth place on the all-time home run list ahead of Ted Williams. McDowell, a hard throwing left-hander struck out 16 batters in his last appearance against Oakland and his two-game total of 30 broke Bob Feller's league record of 28 strikeouts in consecutive games set in 1938. Sandy Koufax holds the major league record with 31 strikeouts in two games in 1959. Mantle's homer, his fourth of the season, went into the lower right field stands, scoring Roy White, who singled ahead of him. A fan retrieved the ball and returned it to Mantle after the game. It will be placed in the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y.

Habe Ruth, with 714 career homers; Willie Mays, with 569; and Jimmie Foxx, with 534, are ahead of Mantle on the all-time list.

All three Cleveland runs came in the third inning when Duke Sims' single drove in one run and McDowell's single to center off Mel Stottlemyre, 3-3, produced two more.

Minnesota's Rod Carew gained 20 points to .359 and advanced to second place. He had nine safeties in 22 trips last week. Andy Etchebarren of Baltimore climbed from seventh to fourth on a 32-point gain to .353. Max Alvis of Cleveland and Frank Howard of Washington are deadlocked for fourth at .333. The figures include Sunday's games.

Roger Repoz of California took over the AL's home run and runs batted in leads. He slammed two homers and drove in nine runs last week, boosting his totals to eight runs and 19 RBI.

Don Swoboda of the New York Mets is the National League home run leader with seven and shares the RBI lead with Cincinnati's Tony Perez at 18.

Reds pound Phillies; Rose extends streak

CINCINNATI (AP) — John Bench hitting .171 before the game started, exploded for a two-run homer, a single and a double to key three Cincinnati uprisings and power the Reds past Philadelphia 10-1 Monday night.

George Culver picked up his first victory of the year as he scattered 10 hits and pitched out of several jams.

Bench had made only two hits in his last 26 at bats before entering the game but both hits had given Cincinnati extra innings victories—one a 3-2 16-inning victory Sunday over Los Angeles.

Pete Rose extended his batting streak to 21 games with a double in the sixth inning.

Cepeda's hit beats Mets in 11th, 2-1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lou Brock opened the 11th inning with a triple and Orlando Cepeda singled him home, giving Bob Gibson and the St. Louis Cardinals a 2-1 victory over the New York Mets and Tom Seaver Monday night.

Brock's hit, only the second off Seaver since the second inning, went to deep left center and the Mets walked the next two hitters intentionally before Cepeda delivered.

Gibson, 3-1, gave up only three hits, none in the last seven innings, and struck out 11 as he bested Seaver, 1-2, who allowed only six hits.

The Mets tied the score in the fourth inning by bunting all their hits off Gibson. Bud Harrelson and Ken Boswell led off the inning with singles.

Leonhard stops Tigers on one hit

BALTIMORE (AP) — Rookie Dave Leonhard of Baltimore allowed one hit—a single by Jim Northrup with two out in the seventh—and pitched the Orioles to a 4-0 victory over the Detroit Tigers Monday night.

It was the eighth consecutive victory and the 13th in the last 15 starts for the red-hot Orioles, who widened their American League lead over the second-place Tigers to 2 1/2 games.

Northrup sliced a 1-2 pitch to left, ending Leonhard's bid to join teammate Tom Phoebus as a no-hit pitcher this season. Phoebus hurled his against the Boston Red Sox on April 27.

Goodrich, Rodgers, Embry among players drafted

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Van Arsdale, Gall Goodrich, Fred Hetzel, Wayne Embry, Guy Rodgers and Len Chappell were among the players drafted Monday when Phoenix and Milwaukee stocked their new National Basketball Association clubs by acquiring 18 players each from the 12 established teams.

Phoenix obtained Van Arsdale and Emmette Bryant from New York, Goodrich from Los Angeles, McCoy McLemore from Chicago, Dick Snyder and Gene Tormohlen from St. Louis and George Wilson from Seattle.

Milwaukee's choices included Hetzel from San Francisco, Embry from Boston, Chappell from Detroit, Rodgers from Cincinnati and Jon McGlocklin from San Diego.

"I'm very happy with our selections," said John "Red" Kerr, the Phoenix coach. "We'll have a young, aggressive club, and we'll be very quick. I'm very pleased to have Van Arsdale, who will be used mostly at guard while Snyder is a big, strong guard. Right now, the center position is between Wilson and Tormohlen." Wilson is 6-foot-8 and Tormohlen 6-9.

"I'm all excited," said Larry Costello, Milwaukee's coach. "I was surprised that Hetzel was available. He's 6-8 and averaged 19 points last season. He can really put the ball in the basket."

"Rodgers will also be a key man for us. He has to handle the ball and didn't get much chance to do it with Oscar Robertson over there at Cincinnati. I'm also sure that Embry will play for us."

Costello, 36, also was among the players drafted by his club. He still was on the player roster of the Philadelphia 76ers although he had been signed to coach the new club last month.

Each of the 12 established teams was permitted to place seven of its players on a protected list before a choice was made by either of the new clubs. Then, after the first selection was made, each team put one previously exposed player on its protected list.

Rose, Harrelson new leaders in batting

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rose by any other name is Mr. Hustle and Cincinnati's hustling outfielder is advancing swiftly toward a club consecutive hitting streak record while pacing the National League in batting.

Rose, a specialist in compiling batting streaks, has hit safely in his last 20 games. He had a 25-game skien during one period last year—the season major league high.

The Reds' record for consecutive game hitting streaks is 27 set in Eddie Roush in 1920 and equalled by Roush in 1924 and Vada Pinson in 1965. The National League mark is 37, established by Tommy Holmes of the Boston Braves in 1945.

Rose collected 14 hits in 32 times at bat last week. He gained 17 points with moved from third place into the lead with a .404 mark.

Curt Flood of St. Louis held second place although he slipped 29 points to .362. He had only seven hits in 25 tries in last week's action. Tommie Aaron of Atlanta, eighth a week ago, zoomed into third place with a 13-point pickup to .359.

Don Kessinger of the Chicago Cubs, the leader last week, dropped to fourth place at .353. Matty Alou of Pittsburgh is fifth at .341.

In the American League, Ken Harrelson of Boston took over the No. 1 spot by garnering 13 hits in 25 attempts—a .520 pace—and lifting his average to .409.

Minnesota's Rod Carew gained 20 points to .359 and advanced to second place. He had nine safeties in 22 trips last week. Andy Etchebarren of Baltimore climbed from seventh to

Howard off to best start in nine years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Frank Howard still speaks softly, but the big stick he swings is making more noise than ever.

The gentlemanly giant of the Washington Senators who concedes, "I'm usually a notoriously slow starter," is off to what may well be his hottest beginning in nine seasons in the majors.

Howard is hitting .333 for the first month with six homers and 16 runs batted in—all totals that rank among the American League leaders.

His surge, combined with stingy Senator pitching, is largely responsible for Washington's invasion of the first division. The Senators haven't finished that high in 22 years. Without Howard, the team has an anemic batting average of .190. Rookie Manager Jim Lemon moved the 6-foot-7 slugger closer to the plate this year so Howard could hit those slanting pitches, breaking low and outside, that have been eluding even his awesome reach.

Lemon said Howard is so strong that pitchers can't stop him even throwing at his wrists. He argued Howard had to protect the outside of the plate more effectively. Howard said the move has helped him follow the breaking balls better.

He added, "I'm more aggressive. I made up my mind about 10 days ago if the pitch was close, I was going to swing at it, no matter whether it was a curve, slider or anything. I've just been trying to swing a bat and not take so many pitches. Every time I go up to the plate, I try to get three good tips at the ball."

Howard tagged a personal high of 36 homers last year and held out to obtain a reported $47,500 this season even though his 1967 batting average slipped to .256, second lowest in his major league career.

"I'm hoping this year I can put it all together and have the kind of year that I think I am capable of," he said.

Ted's Tidbits

By TED WISMER
Sports Editor

We've good news for Arnold Palmer fans.

Contrary to rumors which spread throughout the region last week Palmer plans to go through with his exhibition match with Art Wall May 18 at Pocono Manor. The other members of the foursome will be the Manor's Jack Cuttle and Andy Olexovitch.

The rumors began to spread when it was announced on TV last weekend that Palmer was taking his doctor's advice and laying off for six weeks to allow his hip to mend.

Even if Palmer had to back out the match would still have been held. He would have been replaced by either Jack Nicklaus or Gary Player, with the former expected to be the choice.

The match is being run by the Scranton Junior Women's Club. Tickets purchased prior to the match are $5. Any tickets bought the day of the match are $7.

Unusual Hole-in-one

This writer has witnessed two hole-in-ones in the last two seasons but the one we saw at the Water Gap Country Club last Friday was unusual to say the least.

Gerald Patten didn't exactly get off a good tee shot on the 125-yard (it was playing only about 90 yards this day) fourth hole.

His tee shot hit on the sloping bank which guards the right-hand side of the green. The ball rolled down the bank, onto the green and didn't stop rolling until it landed in the cup.

Kizer tied record

East Stroudsburg's State Ben Kizer has tied the school's record in both the 100 and 220 this season and if he learns to get out of the blocks he'll own both records.

Track coach Al Stockholm feels Kizer has the makings of an exceptional sprinter. Right now Kizer, who never ran in high school, has no start at all but has still turned in a 9.9 run in the 100 and a 21.8 in the 220.

Two-way performers

It's not an uncommon feat any more for a boy to be a member of both the baseball and track teams.

We know of at least two East Stroudsburg High boys doing double duty. Dave Darr is the regular third baseman for the Cavaliers and last week won the javelin with a throw of more than 150 feet. This is an outstanding throw for a boy who only picked up the spear this year. It appears that Darr will attend Trinidad Junior College in Colorado.

The other two-way performer is Steve Nauman. Nauman, incidentally, has been accepted at Duke University.

Sihugo Green shot by woman

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sihugo Green, former basketball All-America at Duquesne University, was hospitalized in satisfactory condition Monday with wounds police said were inflicted by a woman angry over an argument with him.

Police said Green, 33, was shot at his home in the city's Oakland section Sunday night.

Vivian Austin, 34, of Baltimore was charged with aggravated assault and battery.

Big 33 game to revert to East-West format

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — The Big 33 high school all-star football game, scheduled for Aug. 10, will revert to an all-Pennsylvania, East-West format this year.

Al Clark, Big 33 president, announced Saturday that his organization had been unable to negotiate a satisfactory contract with sponsors in the state of Texas, which has sent an all-star team to Pennsylvania for the past four years.

Clark said efforts to arrange a game with Texas, to be played in the Lone Star State, would continue. If a match is arranged, it would follow the Pennsylvania East-West game.

This year's game will be the 11th in the Big 33 series. Before the Pennsylvania-Texas contests began, the series featured East-

West matches and games between state teams and high school all-America squads.

Because of the change in plans, Clark announced that more players would be added to the original 33-man Pennsylvania squad, named earlier, to created two 26-member teams.

New players named were backs Stan Baran of Pittsburgh Central Catholic, Gary Helman of Hempfield Area and Jim Lacey of Pittsburgh South Hills Catholic; interior linemen Tom Jenkins of Thomas Jefferson, Bill Turchetta of Altoona and Bob Knechtel of Hempfield; and center Phil Tony of New Castle.

Clark said halfback Bill Morton of Wilkesburg, an original Big 33 selection, would not be able to play because he has signed a contract with the Cincinnati Reds.

The bidding:
West North East South
1 ♦ 1 ♥ 1 ♠ 2 ♠
3 ♣ 3 ♣ Pass 3 NT

Opening lead—eight of clubs. The bidding by the opponents will sometimes unintentionally draw a map for declarer to follow during the play. Of course, if declarer is a poor navigator or not well versed in cartography, he may still wander off course, but if he suffers from such a shortcoming, he would be well advised to arrange for his partner to take the helm as often as possible.

Examine this hand where West leads a club against three notrump and South wins with the ten. If declarer gives full weight to West's bidding and the opening lead, he should reach the conclusion that West started with either six diamonds and five clubs, or five diamonds and five clubs.

West is not likely to have six clubs headed by the A-K and open the bidding with a diamond. It is also reasonable to assume that West has the king of diamonds as part of his opening bid.

With all these clues at his disposal, South's best approach to the play is to return a club at trick two. This unusual play has much to recommend it and, in fact, it virtually guarantees the contract. Observe the effect of the club return at trick two. If West does not cash his clubs at this point, South easily makes the contract by establishing his spades. West's clubs drop out of the picture if he refuses to cash them.

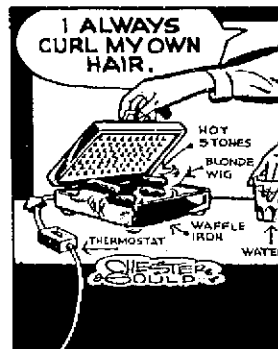

Therefore, let's assume that West takes his four club tricks. Dummy and declarer each discard a spade and a diamond, but whatever West leads next, South applies the screws to East by cashing two diamond tricks as soon as possible.

East finds it impossible, once five rounds of clubs and two rounds of diamonds have been led, to hang onto three spades and four hearts. Whichever suit he unguards, South has no trouble taking the rest of the tricks.

Marshall's Creek Insulation Co. Insulates Everything

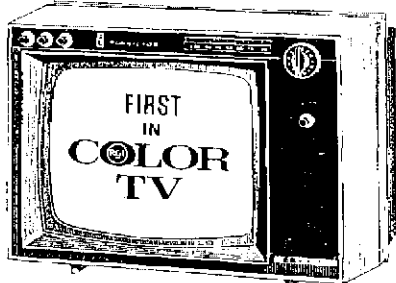

Marshall's Creek Insulation Co. Owner Les Marsh can and does insulate practically anything. In the photo shown above one of Les's employees is shown insulating a water heater to prevent condensation. Some builders in the Poconos now have everything coated with this new Poly Urethane-Foam which is an asset to any new or old home.

Urethane foam spray has these characteristics: it is permanent, monolithic, and fills crack and crevices giving an air tight seal. Moisture will not form on URETHANE-FOAM due to temperature change. It is self-forming and fills and seals any configurations as well as being vermin proof.

URETHANE protects against corrosion, adds little or no burden to non-load bearing partitions, will not shrink or fall away from wall supports, even under vibration. It can easily be cut or sawed should additional opening be required. Adhesion to any CLEAN surface, extra protection against fire hazards, extra rigidity to sprayed surfaces, high compressive strength, and the best thermal value in insulation today make URETHANE number one today. It may be sprayed and left exposed to give a monolithic ceiling or wall, may be painted plastered or stuck to without decreasing its values. Finally Urethane has excellent dimensional stability and is vapor and water resistant. Stop in today and pick up a free brochure at the Lester and Alice Marsh residence in Marshall's Creek (formerly Marshall's Creek Kennels). You'll be glad you insulated when winter rolls around.
